About the Conference

What previous attendees have said:

“Best Law Seminars I’ve ever attended!”

Climate change remains the preeminent issue of our time. As President Trump announces the US will be leaving the Paris Agreement, the California Governor, Legislature and Attorney General continue their resolve to make progress towards California’s ambitious climate and energy goals. We’ll start by examining what has happened in the agencies, Congress and courts during the Trump Administration. We’ll then turn to a number of questions about California’s evolving climate program and how the Trump Administration’s actions might shape the policy debate here:

~Will California forge strong linkages with partners like Quebec and Ontario and continue coordinating with other nations, states and subnationals?

~How has the California carbon market been performing towards achievement of the AB 32’s 2020 goal and what changes are in store as the state turns towards SB 32’s much more ambitious 2030 target?

~How has the policy debate shifted in California due to the increasing influence and success of the environmental justice movement at putting equity and the concerns of disadvantaged communities at its center?

~What are the prospects for expanding regional coordination throughout the Western electricity markets as a means to reduce GHG emissions and export California’s climate policy?

~What legal and economic risks does a state face as it tries to address a global problem like climate change on its own?

Our faculty of thought leaders, policy makers, advocates and practitioners will explore these questions from a wide range of perspectives and viewpoints, with the goal of providing attendees a deep understanding of the dynamics shaping the confluence of California climate and energy policy today.

~ Program Co-Chairs: Tara S. Kaushik, Esq. of Holland & Knight LLP and Kevin Poloncarz, Esq. of Paul Hastings LLP

Faculty: Climate Change and Energy in California Conference

Tara S. Kaushik, Program Co-Chair, is a partner at Holland & Knight LLP and a member of the firm's West Coast Land Use and Environment Group. She focuses on regulatory matters, with a specific emphasis on energy, natural resources and the environment. She represents energy companies, local governments, Alaska Native Corporations and Tribal entities in project developments, including the negotiations of PPA's and project financing.

Kevin Poloncarz, Program Co-Chair, is a partner in the Environment and Energy Practice of Paul Hastings LLP. He is deeply involved in the development of regulations to control greenhouse gas emissions under the federal Clean Air Act and state laws such as the California Global Warming Solutions Act.

Louis Blumberg, Director, California Climate Change Program, The Nature Conservancy's California Chapter, leads a multidisciplinary team developing a comprehensive suite of natural climate solutions, including strategies that will reduce or avoid greenhouse gas emissions from forested and other natural lands.

Xantha Brusio is a Principal at Pacific Gas and Electric Co's Long-Term Energy Policy Group, Energy Procurement Department. She focuses on California and federal climate policy, electrification and natural gas decarbonization strategies, and 2030 mobility scenarios.

John Cataldi is the Managing Partner of the Native American Venture Fund. His Carbon fund is committed in removing in excess of 260 M tons of Green House gases from the atmosphere by 2023 through the profitable carbon sequestration, conservation and management of forest lands throughout North America.

Jon Costantino is the Founder of Tradesman Advisors. He focuses on the complex interactions between West Coast climate change programs and the businesses they impact. The firm also works in other environmental arenas, including energy policy and regulatory strategy.

Danny Cullenward, Research Associate for the Near Zero program at the Carnegie Institution for Science, is an energy economist and lawyer working on the design and implementation of scientifically grounded climate policy.

Abigail Dillen is the Vice President of Litigation for Climate & Energy at Earthjustice. She leads the organization's litigation and legal advocacy to achieve the shift from fossil fuels to 100% clean energy. Previously, she was the Managing Attorney of Earthjustice's coal program.

Elizabeth Dorman serves as Principal Counsel for the California Public Utilities Commission. She provides analysis to CPUC Staff, ALJ's and Commissioners in areas such as long-term energy procurement, resource adequacy, demand response, smart grid/smart meter development, distributed generation and energy storage.

Don Fuller is Director of Strategic Alliances at the California ISO. He has led the ISO initiative to expand regional collaboration across the west, including development and expansion of the energy imbalance market (EIM).

Marcel Hawiger, Staff Attorney, The Utility Reform Network, focuses on demand response, distributed energy resources, and utility infrastructure investments. He litigates on behalf of residential customers and represents ratepayer interests in cases before the CPUC.

Jennifer L. Hernandez leads the West Coast Land Use and Environment Practice Group for Holland & Knight LLP. Her climate change practice includes integrating climate change requirements into the environmental analyses (relating to greenhouse gas emissions as well as water supply, flood and fire risk, and other topical areas) required by CEQA.

Leonard Hochschild, Managing Director at Evolution Markets, Inc., manages the North American Carbon Markets Group, assisting global clients in assessing risk, establishing market strategies, and executing transactions in the global carbon market.

Mittal Monani, Environmental Market Specialist - RGGI & Cali-Quebec, CapitalPower (TSX: CPX).

Brent J. Newell is the Legal Director for the Center on Race Poverty & the Environment. He focuses on climate justice and sustainable agriculture campaigns, advocating for climate policy that advances environmental justice, reform of the harmful factory farm system of food production, and protection of school children from discriminatory pesticide exposures.

Michelle Passero is the Senior Climate Advisor to The Nature Conservancy, California Chapter. She is experienced in land conservation and environmental law and policy, with particular emphasis on forest and climate policy.

Travis Ritchie is a Staff Attorney for the Sierra Club Environmental Law Program, where he focuses on utility and regulatory law.

F. Jackson Stoddard, Of Counsel, Morgan, Lewis & Bockius LLP, represents and advises clients on energy regulatory matters and proceedings before state and federal agencies, including the California Public Utilities Commission, the California Air Resources Board, the California Energy Commission, and the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission.

Andre Templeman is the Managing Director and Founder of Alpha Inception LLC. He has been involved in the carbon and renewable markets as they have emerged from a regulatory concept to a full-fledged commodity market. His experience includes commodity structuring and origination with Macquarie Bank, Goldman Sachs, Duke Energy and Iberdrola Renewables.

Beth A. Viola is a senior policy advisor at Holland & Knight LLP and co-chairs the firm's Energy Team. She focuses on working with clean energy technology companies to create sound public policy drivers for their businesses. Previously, she served as a senior advisor to the White House Council on Environmental Quality.

Michael Wara, Associate Professor of Law, Stanford Law School, is Research Fellow, Freeman Spogli Institute for International Studies, and Faculty Fellow, Steyer-Taylor Center for Energy Policy and Finance. His research focuses on climate and electricity policy.

Mary M. Wiencke is Director of Environmental Strategy and Policy for PacifiCorp. She is responsible for the development of PacifiCorp's environmental policy, strategy, and programs.
